
Prosecco with a G

The vineyards in Italy that produce the country's preeminent Prosecco are going from DOC to DOCG status. Anthony Giglio explains why this is such a big deal.

Prosecco di Conegliano-Valdobbiadene Extra Dry, "Miraval"

The Cosmo family has been making Prosecco here for 20 years. "Miraval" hails from the foothills of the alps in the Vittoria Veneto region, where grapes grown at an altitude of nearly 1,000 feet result in this floral, fruity wine with a balance of creamy richness and bright acidity.

"San Fermo," Conegliano Valdobbiadene DOCG

Bright citrus and a hint of sage on the nose. The clean and surprisingly dry palate has a good base of mineral punctuated by fine and lively perlage (bubbles). The body is steely, with lean and vibrant notes of apple and peach blossom.
